rable personal politics were kept out of e Republican Ciub National Convention far as possible, says the Tribune, it, was acceptibeless impossible to prevent delerates from conferring with one monther with reference to their preferences and to the sentiment in the various localities which they represented. It would only be a bilad, deaf and dumb mun who could have gone among the delegates, either in the convention, or at their soveral headquarters, and not have discovered the gencral drift and tendency to be overwhelm-ingly le favor of the renomination of Mr. Blaine for President. The scutiment has indeed almost reached the point of unanimity. The delegates from Ohio, while openly asserting that they were in favor of the nomination of John Sherman, were neither warm in their advocative Mr. Sherman, nor hopeful of his selection as the standard begree; next year. Ming ling with the Oblo men it was evident that there was a strong Blaine apptiment under restraint in the State, ready to burst out the moment Mr. Sherman should be removed from the field. No other name than that of Mr. Dialno really had any se-rious consideration, in the personal and private discussion smoog, the delegates. The unines of ledders like Depew, Hawley, Forakei, Allison, Harrison, Windom, Lincoln, Sherldan and Grenham, were only menticand to be quickly cast aside with the remark that there was no use of talk-ing about any padelse than Mr. Blains in the present state of public opinion. Mr. Blaine's irlends, in the course of discusslone discreetly refrained from either fostering or checking this cothuclasm.
